No more Scab in Sheep.

The undersigned an old sheep farmer in the south of this province after many years of study in the pernicious infirmity of the scab, has at last discovered an infallible remedy against a sickness that in the body where it generally breaks out likes storm resisting all the remedies that to this time have been discovered.

This specific so simple in its application as great in its result, is preferable to all invented until now, it is cheaper than tobacco, and free from poisonous substances contained in all other remedies before invented.

With only one atrohn of my specific there is sufficient for the Send of 800 or 1000 sheep, and at the low price of 8 100, I will facilitate all sheep farmers to rest their sheep in a perfect state of healthiness to make known this remedy and indeed famous to myself, I have determined to sell small packages of one & at $8 which I hold at every ones disposition who wants to prove its infallibility.

Instructions its application will be given in the deposit of specific against the scab.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 27 1863

THE MAY FESTIVALS.

The general opinion respect ng this republican feast is, that everything passed off very tame this year. No old women were killed by falling ladders, few arrests took place, the National Guard did not turn out, the Municipal lottery was nearly all blanks, and to crown our misfortunes Dr. Syntax was unable to come to time to the ring, and he being in a wretched condition owing to the want of pasture.

On Saturday evening the Colon theatre was well attended as numbers of persons were anxious to witness, besides the attractive performances of the Lezo brothers, the solution of the estate-love question. It will be remembered the State-coach was given up to the Governor of Buenos Ayres, on Gen. Mitre's promotion to the Presidency; but the Box was never settled, though generally supposed to be to be raffled as it could not be carried into the municipal limits. The National hymn was sung, neither President nor Governor attending, this being interpreted as a wish to defer the question of title. A full house applauded the pretty, versified, drama "Flor de un Dia," and the marvelous feats of Messrs Hanlon Lees.

There was a grand ball at the Progress Club, and all the wealth and fashion of the capital shone in the glare of gas light and jewellery, to the astonishment of those visitors from the provinces who were being initiated in the secret intention to this ultra-aristocratic assembly. The supper was superb, no woodden hams, wax-fruit, or sham confectionery, and the artistic talent was called up to receive a public expression of thanks, for he fairly out-did all his former achievements.

On Sunday it looked threatening, but the city poured forth its thousands, after church-hour, to assemble in the Plaza Victoria, which was gaily decorated with flags of all nations. There was a notable lack of ladies, partly owing to the weather, but still more to the labors of the previous night, in the tedious toilette, and many dance, which called for repose to an advanced hour. The show and the wig performed excellent the tight rope, and received the plaudits of natives, house-maids, and children whose admission was obtained by the merry go-rounds and "rompe-cabezas" in Plaza Mayo,

At night the fireworks were very grand, and the Colon theatre was never more crowded than before: as much as 5000 was paid for a seat, and we have heard of 50000 being offered for a box during the "temporada." The President, and family, attended in his private "palco"; r. Wm. B. Lees, although still indisposed, performed admirably with his two brothers. Mr. Alfred Lees being prevented by a sprained ancle. The comedy "Amante prestado" was very good.

Monday morning [26th] was ushered in with a salvo of artillery, and at sun-rise the children of the Model schools formed around the pyramid to sing the National "Old Mortales el grito sagrado." Few people were up so early, although a vigorous bell-ringing from every tower and steeple prevented matutinal slumbers. A grand high Mass was sung at 8. Domingo Lezo officiating for the battle of Pavon, and at noon the Cathedral doors were opened to receive all the official corps of gen fanchonarios The Bishop entoned "Te Deum laudamus" to a rather thin congregation. The President and Governor knelt on opposite sides, before the grand "prie dieux, and the public officials were ranged down towards the altar. Very few consuls attended, as only one Minister (Hon. Mr. Kirkpatrick) was present. The Artillery under Colonel Escola (without cannon) formed in front of the episcopal palace the 3rd infantry, headed by their drum, faced the statue of Liberty; the latter in their new uniform (Chasseurs de Vincennes) looked well. The President's coach drawn by 6 greys was eclipsed by the Governor's chariot with 4 cream colored horses. Just as the bands struck up the Stateanthem, and the officials were coming out of the Cathedral, some boys ran through the crowd distributing a bulletin, which even the mounted troopers eagerly snapped up. It cited no news of Flores, but simply notified that Sor Aldunsolo, the photographer had removed to 25 calle de Florida.

The President and Governor entered the police office, and passed the troops in review from the Municipal balcony. About 500 men marched by, all in good order. Then a luncheon was served up, on a small scale, while the band outside played the Argentine drum, fife, serve the Queen, the Marseillaise &c. Montebanks next claimed attention, and the clown caused great merriment by dancing on the tops of poles in a sack

In the evening, the illuminations of the pyramid, archbishop's palace, bank, Municipal Government and House, police office, and Custom house, were extinguished by a high wind. Meantime an immense crowd waited for the fireworks which beginned at 8 o'clock and were unusually splendid. By some mismanagement the National Hymn, at Colon, was sung before the rockets were finished, disappointing several persons. The Federal box was set on, President Mitre taking the seat of honour and having the Governor and his Ministers (Elizalde, Gelly, Domingues) on either side. The house was crowded to excess, and the Lezo brothers were greeted with enthusiastic applause although there was no Zamudio-crostation, as Mr William Lees is only convalescent.

There was a grand supper and ball on May festivals [Dos gratias] and this truce to work is now over. The usual termination, consisting of a distribution of premiums to the pupils of the public schools was postponed on account of the heavy rain yesterday.

THE QUEEN'S DINNER.

Don't be alarmed readers I we are neither about to intrude on the privacy of a select re-union of the flower and pink of British loyalty, nor to narrate a series of " entrees, cotelettes a la Milanaise and other "pieces de resistance" washed down with Hock, Moselle or St. Peray, at the expense of H. Gracious Majesty. The Queen's dinner, "il est," the banquet intended to celebrate the 24th May, was given by the patriotic Committee Sunday during the Mass, and the libretto "Fra Diavolo," author in the inner room on Sunday last. A large number of invitations was issued, as the anti-water host felt anxious to do all honor to the day, and some 40 countrymen responded to so happy an idea. The representative of the British Press was not excluded but circumstances prevented our presence, and we are indebted for the following account, to one of the guests.

The weather was not very propitious but this did not deter the invited parties from assembling at the house of the British residences, which was conspicuously resplendent with the bunting so liberally displayed from stem to stern. On the desk of La Zingara stood her trusty Commander, Saunders, who received his guests with a welcome which betrayed his long experience with the Emerald Isle. No stiff routine, no vulgar gentility, no aping after aristocratic modes, but the plain, honest bearing of a Britisher, who felt at home in the midst of his loyalty to a given shape, nor borrows common-place technicalities from Blue Books or official Chesterfields. Several of the Masters of English vessels were also there, nor were they visitors to any fear of trenching on courtiers' kibes, or behaving in aught contrary to the approved system of Almack's, for, good souls, they steer by the laws of Navigation, and learn politeness of Abbott.

When the company had assembled, there being no master of Ceremonies, the gallant captain gave the signal, and all took their seats at the festive board. Perhaps etiquette and punctilio were not so much respected as in less democratic and cord'al meetings but good humor was depicted in every countenance, and the viands would have done credit to Lucullani. Roast beef and plum pudding were certainly not genteel, but thoroughly British, wholesome, and substantial. Fowls, vegetables, peas, hams, ox tongue, jellies &c. wanted only the garnish of French or Italian epithets to make them fit for a diplomatist or a President. English beer and porter alternated with port and sherry; although a fastidious bon vivant would have desired something less common to the "plebs" and more confined to patrician wine bibbers.

A genial spirit soon spread his wings over the unsophisticated party, and all hearts beat with content and loyalty while every eye sparkled with friendship, and mirth — when the jovial Saunders stood up, glass in hand, and, the champagne being passed round, invited all hands to drink the toast of the evening.

"The Queen, God bless her"

The chairman knew little about Demosthenes or Dante; but he had, during many years under a British flag, decided to no man, filled or offic'a ted in commie loyalty, and, standing on British ground in the waters of the river, Plate he called on his countrymen to consent to commemorate the Queen's birthday by giving three times three for her long life and happiness.

Then burst from 40 throats a long, loud, willing "hip, hip, hurra" which reverberated across the roadstead, being caught up by the crews of neighboring vessels, and might be heard in calle Bolivar or Belgrano.

The flowing bumpers were drained and Music was invoked to cast a spell over the festive board; then followed in varied succession the other appropria, to toasts "the Argentine Republic," "British ship-masters" &c. Some short, pithy, speeches were delivered in a manner worthy of classical Scotchmen, Irishmans, and criticism or jealousy had no place in the smiling picture.

But, alas! even the Queen's birth day must come to a close, and before the shades of Evening enveloped the graceful spars and outline of the well-known clipper "La Zingara," the company broke up. It is quite consistent with loyalty and marine courtesy to retire sober, although those who remained at Capt Saunder's patriotic entertainment may fancy his guests imitated the aristocratic hab's of past times.

The British community of Buenos Ayres has reason to be thankful for the earnest, manly, and decent behavior of the gallant old commodore. Man is a social animal, and Britons are famed for hospitality, no less than demonstrative loyalty. Hitherto our American and French brethren left us far behind in these celebrations, which have a double charm in this distant country awaking recollections of our dear island homes, and blending the former rivalries of Anglo and Celt in one power's fal fraternity. St. Patrick's Dinner this year was a successful experiment and Capt. Saunders has been no less felicious. Let us hope our country men will learn to know each other better, by such friendly contact at the festive board. Repugnance or repulsiveness in a rust which will corrode even precious metals; but the wheels of society when properly balanced and revolving in harmony, will produce a healthy, agreeable, and mutual, action.

THE MINISTER IALMUTTURE.

The disagreeable interview between the four European Ministers and our Secretary for Foreign Affairs has widened into a breach that may not soon be filled up, embarrassing the position of us all, who have more solid interests in Buenos Aires than a diplomatic conch or dagstuff. The arrival of the Italian and Portuguese country on board an English war steamer, and collective visit of these, and the French and British represents tatives, were of course regarded as a menace, which the Argentine Government was bound to hurl back defiantly. The recent misconduct of Mr Christie at Rio Janeiro, and armed reclamation of our Admiral at Valparaiso, have gained the British nation a character for outlying small States, which, true or false, it is our interest to remove Again, M. Lefebre de Becour is connected with the most influential Federal family in the republic, and his intervention, like Irish reciprocity, is all one-sided. The other two (transplatine) diplomatists are almost unknown, and neither their personal prestige, nor the weight of the Turin and Lisbon cabinets, could materially strengthen the hands of the British Minister in Buenos Aires.

If Mr. Dorin had taken good advice, he would have presented himself simply at the Nat. Government-house, and we rest assured that the natural politeness of Argentines, the respect and consideration due to the British nation, and the friendly ties uniting us with the natives would have precluded the possibility of such an unpleasant issue as we have, now, reason to deplore. Nevertheless we doubt not the Minister acted as he thought right under however impolitic was the joint visit, it is nowise contrary to diplomatic rights and customs, as incorrectly stated by our colleagues.

It is a pity that official dignity and reserve prevented our Charge d'affaires from visiting strong the ability of one who condemned his conduct on the occasion, though not the motives which actuated him. If a public meeting be convened, he would have found the opinion of British residents decidedly contrary; but the second fa x pas may be averted by the appointment of Dorin as commercial rely a new corner and no set rules of diplomacy can be laid down as a guide in such questions. The first article, a wide-awake counsel of men who understand the country, signed with the other three a collective Note to the Government, would have settled it on the unlucky visit. The Note was returned unanswered, a slight, which in his Oriental experiences he had been unused to receive; [Turkey, Persia the Brit. Legationales with a high hand, and the Hospodar of Servia would not dare imitate President Mitre's cool policy.

Senator Pinero will quote this rupture as a fresh proof of his thesis, that foreign ministers only cause us disturbances and to be avoided. We will not be worried but we flag, on good terms with the natives, when we boasted no higher representative than Consul Parish! Ultimatums, notes, diplomatic dinners, &c. must be sent not to disturb our sleep, and the Queen's birthday brought us an interchange of compliments, less effective than the salvos of the batteries fired no salute, the press withheld the usual courtesies salutation to H. B. M., and no Argentine flag was hoisted on the consulate, in the city but the flag, on the anniversary of the 25th except the British Legation. The bare flag-staff was looked on as an insult to the nation, and the Argentine Consul General has not offic'l. Some foreign friends, dreading unpleasant consequences looked out eagerly for the Union flag, and when it appeared half-past eleven it was hailed in the breeze, weighty as taken off their hearts, showing the occurrence was merely a misdirected zeal. We learn our readers that, by a new order of the Foreign office, all British representatives are prohibit d from joining in the Mass, unless to celebrate some feat of arms in which Great Britain has had a part.

Still the Government cherishes a sense of injury, and we are informed the first duty of the Argentine Ambassador at London and Paris will be to lodge a complaint of what, under the circumstances, is regarded as insult to the Republic, or the rent of the four Ministers. Respecting Mr. Dorin, he will probably be anticipated by the return of our late Minister, whose luggage is already on route for Buenos Ayres, his mission to His Japanese Majesty a false rumor. Thornton's arrival will restore amicable relations with the Argentine Government, for it is unlikely that the British settlers cannot afford to quarrel with the local Government, however grave the difference with our Resident Minister.

THE CHILIAN MATL.

We have the Extra-carril of Santiago up to the 15th inst. but it has little to say to the capital in the point of being finished. Splendid fields of guano had been discovered in the province of Coquimbo, and Government was about to grant their alleged right of monopoly. Congress sat only twice in the fortnight, owing to the want of a quorum. The Chilian Bank interest is fixed at 4 per cent per annum. Cobl weather had set in, varied with rains; small pox was prevalent in the Chilean press charges the Argentine with bloody barbarities under the pretended mission of repressing barbarism. 250000 tobacco cigars had been captured by Government, on farms for which the owners had no patents.

The Central trans-way gave a dividend of 10 1/2 per cent for the year ending January 31st. News from Copiapo is favorable, the miners expect to find rich in copper on the London market. some robberies had been committed and a company of "estaudores" set out to look for veins in the Cordillera.

Mr. H. M Keith is engaged, to erect a column at Tilsil in honor of the deceased patriot, Manuel Rodriguez The killing-ground of Valparaiso is about to be removed further out from the city. It was removed Clavero had taken Mendoza, but afterward contradicted.

PERU

After General San Roman's death, the Second Vice-President assumed supreme power, and his government was getting on pretty well. Grave suspicions were entertained of treachery on the part of Ecuador. Last news from Mexico reported the French in front of Puebla, with 1 90,000 men - Ortega and President Juarez defending the city with 40,0.0 men and fortifications equal to Sebastopol.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The feasts are over, and the rain has come. The state of the Sou h was rather alarming; the cattle were dying and the sheep almost starved; both water and grass were sadly wanted: many estancieros selling what remained of their stock at fearfully low prices, and others unable to realize at any price, are driving their stock to the north. About the Arroyo Medio and the valley of Pavon, the increase of stock and farmeries perfectly incredible. No one who knew those districts only a year ago could believe that is so short a time they would become so thickly settled. The finest camps in the country are to be found there, and as the rents are moderate, a square league, on a ten years' lease only costing the same as a peon's in the Villa Lezon, our countrymen are availing themselves of the chance.

We have the most conflicting rumours. On Saturday, a whalebout arrived from Colonia with the sad tidings news that Flores had beaten Medina and Lamas, and was on the high-road for the Mount. On Sunday morning a new version was current, Medina and Lamas had chased Flores, scattered his few followers, and the whole revolution, invasion, negociation and Montevideo affair was ended. We withhold from paying attention to either of the reports, as we think they were manufactured at the great rural agency, the Bolsa.

The news from Entre Rios is rather startling, if true. We read in an Entre Riono journal that there is a general swearing of men, that the divisions of Gualeguay, Gualeguaychu Uruguay, Concordia and La Paz are being got together, with the greatest hurry. We wonder if Mr Pereira can throw any light on the matter.

The news from the interior prevails in a destitute of interest, strange to say, not a word is said about Penaloza or Sandes. In Rosario there was a rumour that Dr Carriego was appointed, it will be remembered, to this gentleman is the editor of the Litoral' of Paraná, a journal conducted with more talent than probity.

We have heard of no accidents in the Plaza this year, although two enormous ladders were last standing on the public square, to the imminent risk of passers by. On Monday night several public buildings were in the dark, and in the Plaza many of the lamps were extinguished by the uncongenial nor'easter.

The wet weather made the city streets impassable yesterday. The state of the streets inline weather is intolerable with the dust, and in wet weather perfectly impassable with the flood. Rivulets down the chief streets, no crossing a torrent in front of the Bank, and the Bolsa seven by the most heroic brokers. We must call public attention to the disgraceful state of things. If the Municipality won't make sewers, then let us all call together, and make them ourselves. Something must be done, as many citizens cannot swim, and ferry boats are not in fashion.

We regret that our remarks respecting the Queen's Birthday dinner, at the Legation, should have offended any, as such was not our intention, but merely to call public attention to the monstrous absurdity of having what is called a public dinner reduced to 14 or 16 individuals. We learn that 4320 is allowed by the British Government for the celebration. We may add that the majority of British residents consider it unjust that the Queen's Birthday, if celebrated at all, should be done so in a manner more becoming the dignity and majesty of the great nation, for which we are proud to belong Our doubts about the drinking her Majesty's health was elicited by the fact that last year, through some blunder it was omitted.

BRITISH MAIL.—The Magdalena leaves to-day for the outer roads, passengers would do well to go on board to-day to avoid the inconvenience of going off in a whaleboat

VIVA COTTON

Consul Hutchinson of Rosario has disposed of every grain of the cotton grown in the province of Santa Fe, and is now in search of more. We learn that the great opinion in Liverpool is that a war with the U. S. is inevitable.

Consul Hutchinson notifies us that he has received a letter of his at the British legation on the subject of Cotton.

Next week or so ship our first River Plate cotton will probably arrive. Early beginnings, they generally lead to great results. The few pounds we ship now, we fervently hope, is but the earnest of a crop which will yet rival that of any other nation on the Globe.

Mr. Deputy Bunch from San Luis, has applied to us for a cotton gin. We have also had letters from merchants who may have cotton gins to sell, by applying to us we can put purchasers.

LOCAL EVENTS.

SOCIETY OF BENEFICENCE.

The fine ceremony, of distribution of prizes which ought to have taken place yesterday at Colon theatre we must defer to the next number on account of the hurry and continued rain.

CRIMINAL MISTAKES—A few days ago the state gaoler sent to Patagone for Execution a prisoner who was incarcerated for the real culprit. Everything was ready, when it was happily proved that the commander of that settlement could not shoot him under the circumstances, and that the real culprit's his mistaken identity and saved his life from an unjust and ignominious death.

Since that we find the captain of the Port arrest on board one of the Montevideo steamboats an innocent passenger who was going there on business mistaking him for a rogue endeavouring to escape.

These gross mistakes should be punished by the authorities, tomorrow, if not taken notice of any citizen under the plea of mistaken identity may be sent to the jail or otherwise suffer inconvenience.
